“ I remember when I was a young child our family lived on Salt Spring Road in Montego Bay Jamaica. One day I followed my mother to the gate of our yard. There was a woman walking by. She was in distress. I remember my mother calling out to her and offering her something to drink. As far as I know this woman was a complete stranger to my mother. Years later as I went on to work as a minister, social worker and in mental health, I believe that my mother had some influence on my career path. Of course there is also God's calling on my life. But that caring for others that I saw in my mother has never left me.
