“ My father was a very good person, a quiet man, a good father to his children. It was sad to see him suffering silently, all these years; And although, I will miss not seeing him, anymore, I find comfort with the belief that his soul is resting with God.

“ *My dad has been ill for almost 10 years with Alzheimer's. My heart was always broken every time I visited him and he didn't recognize who I was. However, he was there alive and giving me time to still hang out with him, caring for him. Those were the smallest things I could have done for him but it was a privilege for me. I am going to miss him, miss these little stolen moments when I kiss him and he kisses back, when I see a little light in his eyes telling me he knew who I was for a split second. The memories didn't stop here though. I will always cherish the good times we had together. I had the time to give him one last kiss and one last hug on the day he took his last breath. I will cherish this frail moment forever. I love you, dad!!

“ October 24, 2015 was a very difficult day for me, the day when the Lord called my beloved Daddy Bob home. Daddy was a faithful follower of Christ, so I have no doubt that he is in the presence of the Lord Jesus whom he loves! Yet I know that I am going to miss him so very much! Thank you Daddy for being the Greatest Dad anyone could ever have and thank you Lord for granting my Dad the gift of eternal life! Josephine
